Washington. — Unset diamonds worth at least $50,000,000 are being smuggled into the United States this year by a gang of international smugglers. The government of this country will be refunded out of $10,000,000 duty due on the gems. Skilled American secret service agents have been sent to Antwerp, Belgium, headquarters of the gang, to try to capture the smugglers.

The smuggler gang has been in op-

Governments officials admit that the manner in which the diamonds are smuggled into this country is a mystery they have been unable to solve.

Customs inspectors select on an average of $150,000 worth of smuggled gems a year. It is explained that it is doubtful if any of these gems were taken from agents of the lawless band. The directors of the international gang are believed to be Americans, and secret service agents are working day and night in their anxiety to end the gang's operations.

Chicago.—Bureaucracy of the United States wastes $700,000,000 annually, it was shown in a survey made by the U. S. A. authorities of the Middle West Utilities company, which was made public recently. Authorities here are credited with the credit of the engineering for the company.

His figures showed that each family wasted about 10 cents worth of food daily by spoilage, or an equivalent of $35 annually. This waste was not due to carelessness, but rather to a want of proper refrigerating facilities, he said.

"Only 55 per cent of the 22,760,000 American homes have refrigerators, and but 20 per cent of them use the full capacity," Authorities found.

"Present-day diet is composed chief-ly of highly perishable foods—green vegetables, fresh fruits, meat and dairy products," he said. "These foods contain a high percentage of water, and are therefore very perishable. Refrigeration has become a necessity in the name of economy, because a constant temperature of 45 degrees or less is required to delay deterioration."

Chicago.—Housewives of the United States throw—$700,000,000 in foodstuffs annually to the waste, according to a survey completed by A. J. Anthurath of the Middle West Utilities company, which was made public last week. Anthurath is vice president in charge of the law engineering for the company.
His figures showed that each family wasted about 10 cents' worth of food daily by spoilage, or an equivalent of $35 annually. This waste was not due to carelessness, but rather to the want of proper refrigerating facilities, he said.

"Present-day diet is composed chiefly of highly perishable foods—green vegetables, fruits, seafoods and dairy products," he said. "These foods contain a high percentage of moisture and are subject to rapid spoilage. Refrigeration has become a necessity for the modern housewife, because a constant temperature of 45 degrees or less is required to delay deterioration."

London.—An "anti-depression restaurant" for wine shoppers on foggy days was recently opened by a large Piccadilly circus department store.
The restaurant stratches from one end of the store to the other. Artificial sunlight effects are obtained by the glowing golden walls and ceiling of the lounge.
Beams stretch across the ceiling of the restaurant, which is papered in silver. On the walls are dull orange and green lights in slender borders.
"The carpet is yellow, with blue 'sunbeams' and green borders, and tables of apple green. Shimmering green taffeta curtains give an illusion of leaves and wine only."
"We wanted something that would cheer up wine shoppers on dull, rainy days which are a sorry thing to find in any season," one of the directors declared.
Features of the service are quick luncheons and American dishes.

Find Photographic Way to Trace Tuberculosis
Paris.—A photographic method of determining the existence of tuberculosis in mankind, even when unsuspected, was announced by Dr. J. J. Vernes, head of the Prophylactic Institute, whose work has been greatly facilitated by large gifts from Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gould.
Vernes asserted that more than 10,000 tests have verified the accuracy of his procedure, which is based on a photometric test of the blood. Tuberculosis is frequently active when the lungs are entirely free of it, he said. The presence and absence of hidden seed of the disease was then found.

THE MEN'S SHOP, INC

This image is a high-contrast, black and white scan of a vertical strip. It appears to be a page edge or a binding, with a bright white vertical line running down the center, flanked by dark, textured areas. The texture on the left side is grainy and uneven, while the right side is mostly black with some faint, vertical lines. There is no text or other content visible.

This image is a dark, high-contrast, vertical scan, likely of a book cover or endpaper. It features a textured, mottled surface in shades of gray and black. A prominent, bright white vertical strip runs along the right edge. A small, dark, rectangular object is visible near the center of the white strip. The overall appearance is grainy and abstract.

This image is a high-contrast, black and white scan of a vertical strip, likely a page edge or a binding. The strip is light gray and runs vertically down the center of the frame. To its left is a dark gray area, and to its right is a solid black area. The strip shows some texture and slight variations in tone, suggesting it might be a piece of paper or a binding material. There are no discernible text or figures.
